Fairbanks International Airport welcomes diverted aircraft

(JUNEAU, Alaska) – Fairbanks International Airport and its crews handled the task of accommodating 19 cargo flights and one passenger flight that were diverted there this morning from Anchorage after 100 knot winds and severe turbulence hampered those flights to Ted Stevens Anchorage International Airport.

PLENTY OF ROOM FOR GUESTS: Several cargo aircraft line the tarmac at Fairbanks International Airport this morning after being diverted from Anchorage after extreme weather conditions forced the aircraft crews to fly to Fairbanks. (Official DOT&PF photo by Angela Spear, FAI)
